Dear Dr. Davis:

Thank you for the additional excerpts you enclosed with your letter of the 23rd. I am appalled at the lack of understanding displayed by such widely known experts. My article really was not difficult to understand and it was entirely correct. I suspect that it is precisely these two points which bother these experts.

I am pleased that you are to publish my reply with only the exception you mentioned. When you publish it, I wish you would list my city address as Cincinnati 18, Ohio. Without the postal zone, my mail generally gets returned to the sender.

I should like to know whether you make up reprints of the criticisms and replies, as I should be most anxious to receive or purchase same.

Again, thanks for publishing the criticisms and the reply. I am sorry that my article has caused some difficulty for you, but it is certainly true that the difficulty is not of my doing. Apparently, there has always been a great deal of resistance to the right answer.

Sincerely yours,

Eugene F. Adiutori
