Dear Dr. Adiutori:

I have read the first nine chapters of your book, "The New Heat Transfer," and I have been so favorably impressed by your presentation that I wanted to tell you so. The history of radical new ideas brought before the public has generally been stormy, and your episode with the "Argonne Seven" is not surprising. Your heat transfer concepts have proven their worth in correlating my data on heat transfer from a highly viscous polymer fluid.

I have a copy of your 1964 article in Nucleonics. Do you have other publications that you could steer me to in order to give me more information about yourself and your engineering work?

Sincerely yours,

Research Engineer
